ORDER

The court institutes the following TIMING ORDER, regulating the parties' time to try this case. The plaintiff will have 15 hours at trial, including direct examination (both live and by deposition, cross-examination, and bench conferences. The defendant will have 15 hours at trial, including direct examination (both live and by deposition), cross-examination, and bench conferences. Opening and closing statements will not be charged to either party.

Signed at Houston, Texas on March \( \sum_{\text{s}} \) 2022.

Gray H. Willer
Senior United States District Judge

From past experience, the court estimates that a trial day is approximately 5 hours.

Time consumed for bench conferences will be charged against the party initiating the bench conference. Conferences initiated by the court will not be charged to either party.
